MoorTech is a Tasmanian-based company offering a variety of marine-based services from marine surveys to diving platform services.

As part of this offering, MoorTech introduces to Tasmania the N-Viro Mooring and Anchor system, which brings a unique and innovative development to the marine and aquaculture industry. The MoorTech N-Viro system is based on screw piling technology: screw piles were first used around 180 years ago as foundations for a lighthouse off the coast of England.
